

Site Review

Relay FM Microsite by Julia Dickerman

First off, a big fan of the way you've integrated the show art into the aesthetic of the overall site. Love the tiled background image on the home page, as well as the grid layout for the show and host page. I think the structure of the content is solid, especially as it pairs with the serified font you've selected. I think alongside the title font, there's a good balance of professionalism and whimsy that I think captures the feel of the company well.

A few minor things on mobile: the third item of the nav bar seems to wrap onto the next line, and the show icon/home link seems to get cut off at the top. On the about page, the show art right column you have going on (which works well on desktop!) seems to float into the top nav. Fixing these responsiveness issues is probably where'd I start for draft two.

Otherwise, I think the site looks great! A nice to have is to include links to the Twitter pages/RSS feeds on the Relay site for the hosts/shows, and figuring out a way for iconography to display this information.
